

ROSS GRIFFITH

Class of 1956

Ross Griffith, 1952-1959, gained a Bachelor of Science in Textile Engineering at UNSW in 1961 and a PhD at the University of Leeds in 1982. He was head of the School of Fibre Science and Technology 1985-1997 and Professor of Textile Technology 1990 -1997 at UNSW. Ross was elected a Fellow of the Textile Institute in 1984 and was awarded the Institutes Service Medal in 1988. He is currently an Emeritus Professor and an Adjunct Professor of RMIT University.

Besides thirty-five years as a practising textile technologist, Ross has been a consultant to governments and the textile clothing industries. He is a Fellow of the Textile Institute and a member of the Council of the Australian Academy of Forensic sciences.

Ross has been a director of The Smith Family 1985-2003. He is an author of over sixty publications and five patent applications.